Our Mission

Founded in 2012, we are a husband-psychologist and wife-attorney team dedicated to improving prospects for San Diego's at-risk immigrant youth.

"Little family meetings" are what students call our year-round in-school support groups.

We accompany children through the trauma of ICE taking their mom or dad, and connect them with critical resources.

We guide DACA youth through the college application process and through to college graduation.

Improving prospects for San Diego's at-risk immigrant youth through legal, mental health and continuing education support

"Little Family Meetings"

- Led by a licensed, award-winning attorney

- Year-round workshops held at school during lunch or after school

- Provides a safe space where all students regardless of status can ask questions and get information

- Interactive skits on how to communicate with immigration officials

- One-on-one assistance with college financial aid

Mental Health Support

One out of seven K-12 students in San Diego have at least one undocumented parent. For children separated from their parents through immigration, we provide individual and small group counseling with a caring and credentialed school psychologist.
